CSSI named as finalist for Technology Product of the Year.

April 6, 2006, Lewisburg, PA

Computer Support Services, Inc's CoreIntegrator was a finalist for the Technology Council of Central PA's 2005 Technology Product of the Year award. This award, presented at the Technology Council's 14th Annual Gala in March goes to a product that has achieved or has the potential to achieve significant market impact. CSSI's recognition comes in the wake of the success of its CoreIntegrator document management software.

"It is an honor to be recognized for our cutting edge technology," said CSSI Vice President, Tom Erickson. "This is testimony to CSSI's mission to be a leading resource for practical technology solutions." Awards were determined from a field of 66 nominees in seven categories.

What is the buzz about? CoreIntegrator streamlines a company's workflow from the mailroom to the filing cabinet. The document management capabilities attach electronic data to transactions within your business applications software. These documents are available for review or approval at the click of a mouse from anywhere in an organization. "When you scan an invoice, distribute it electronically for management review and approval, and attach it to an Accounts Payable transaction in your accounting software, you eliminate overhead and reduce costs. Your accounting manager in Anchorage can review records from NY simply by logging on to the accounting software—or to the document management system."

Success with GP<sup>X</sup> documentManager—CSSI's customizable solution for Microsoft Dynamics<sup>TM</sup> GP (Great Plains) accounting, prompted CSSI to develop coreIntegrator technology which provides document management solutions for almost any enterprise software application. A Microsoft Certified Partner and reseller of Microsoft Dynamics GP, CSSI offers "best-fit" technology solutions to its customers' specific business problems.
