CSSI Launches Integrated Imaging to Microsoft Great Plains

Integrating Legato's Content Management solution adds Document Management to Microsoft Great Plains Business Solutions

LEWISBURG, PA. Computer Support Services, Inc., CSSI, announced the official release of GP^x, a solution that integrates ApplicationXtender from content management leader Legato with Microsoft Great Plains Accounting Software. Officially debuted at AIIM 2003 in New York City, the GP^x product received excellent reviews from both business partners and customers alike.

"Legato has focused many of its efforts this year on the integration of the XtenderSolutions to industry leading business solutions, Microsoft Great Plains is part of that plan. CSSI has created a clean and efficient interface from Great Plains to ApplicationXtender and we look forward to working with CSSI as this product is rolled out nationwide" Nick Bova, VP of Business Development, Legato.

Officially called ApplicationXtender Module for Microsoft Great Plains, the GP^x product allows Great Plains users to attach, scan, edit, annotate, store and retrieve any variety of documents. Documents can be of many formats including, scanned images, CAD drawings, word documents, spreadsheets, movies, voice files, and so on. Users also have the ability to print, fax or email these documents as needed. Non Great Plains users also have access to the same documents through ApplicationXtenders' powerful query tool which is also available in a browser format through WebXtender. With more than 80 different integration points throughout the system, users can attach documents to specific transactions, inquiries, vendors, customers or employees.

GP^x will be sold nationwide through Legato Business Partners, Great Plains Business Partners and through CSSI's direct sales force.
